Keeping up with payments on bills may feel like a lost cause. That means if the credit card debt defaulted in June 2007 any collections associated with it cannot remain on a credit report after June 2014. Even if you pay the collection, settle the collection or make periodic payments to pay off the collection, still June 2014. Nothing resets the date from which the collection purges. The collection agency has either been hired by the credit card issuer to collect the debt or they have outright purchased the debt and THEY are now the creditor, which means you now own them money. Most people don't realize that there are limits to what a debt collector can do and say when they're trying to collect a debt. However, in Ontario, Alberta, and Nova Scotia there is a "three strikes" rule, limiting collection agents from emailing you, leaving a voicemail, or speaking with you more than three times within a seven-day period after having an initial conversation with you. Another particularly troubling recent practice is the growing number of cases where debt collectors persuade consumers to pay just a little of the amount due -- and then they use the bank info to improperly withdraw more money from the consumer's bank account. Creditors are not able to devote the enormous amount of time and money into pursuing the thousands of people who fall into debt each year, and debt collection companies are eagerly stepping in to buy the debt from creditors for a fraction of the total debt. The amount of the score impact is going to vary on a variety of other things. Either kind of collection account could hurt your credit score. He said that it wasn't even a Verizon number and they had no records of me on any account! Imagine getting embarrassing calls at work, illegal withdrawals from your bank accounts -- and even threats of violence. Consequently, it is crucial to have as much evidence as possible documenting the calls from the debt collector so the frequency and volume of the calls can be determined as precisely as possible. If they've simply consigned the debt to the collector then you could repay the original creditor directly.

The fact that they identified themselves as a debt collector is a requirement under the Fair Debt Collection Practices Act (FDCPA). The bounds of the FDCPA have limits, so state law can fill in gaps left by that Act. I've had debt collectors call for people who don't live at my address, for people who tried to use my address fraudulently, for people who left the country leaving the debt collectors only vague connections that they can use to try to get hold of them, etc. Each time they've been quite nice about it. Collectors may contact you in person, by mail, telephone, telegram or fax. But they get in contact by letter, email, etc. first because THAT'S THE POLITE THING TO DO. They can't contact you and pretend to be someone else. Federal surveys show that low-income workers can't afford to lose a quarter of their pay. Can't I just go to the credit card company and pay them directly? Q: John, I started getting phone calls last week from a company called "name withheld." They told me that they're a collection company and that they are collecting a debt that I owed years ago to a credit card company.

And yes, it is perfectly legal for them to collect debts that are even years old. Yes, it is perfectly legal for a collection agency to either attempt to collect a credit card issuer's debt or to buy the debt and assume the role as the creditor. What makes this even worse is that these debt collectors are using these abusive techniques on people who don't even owe any money; they are merely victims of identity theft -- or they have a similar name to the person who owed the money. This often happens in situations involving identity theft. He is an expert on credit reporting, credit scoring and identity theft. Debt Recoveries Australia is the expert at recovering your outstanding debt without the drama. Harassment, breaking various laws in attempting to collect a debt. The reason you're getting calls, and will eventually get letters, from a collection agency is because they are trying to collect money from you for a defaulted credit card debt. 4 trillion by the end of 2018. But when you're not actually in debt, it's even worse. If a letter seems like it's from a law firm, but no attorney personally reviewed your file, it may be in violation of the FDCPA.
