

Click Here

Single member llc operating agreement example

Wikipedia is the free online encyclopedia that can be edited by anyone. It has over 118,000 active editors and more than 6 million articles written in English. The iMac G4 was an all-in-one computer produced by Apple from 2002 to 2004. It featured a curved base and a flatscreen display mounted above it. The iMac G4 was inspired by the shape of a sunflower, with the display connected to the base via a stainless steel arm that allowed for flexibility in orientation. Given article text here 1929 - The first Academy Awards ceremony was held at the Hollywood Roosevelt Hotel in Los Angeles, California. 1975 - Japanese climber Junko Tabei became the first woman to reach the summit of Mount Everest. The Church of the Good Shepherd is a Category 1 Historic Place at Lake Tekapo There are thirty listed sites located in the Mackenzie District, a territorial authority in the Canterbury Region of the South Island of New Zealand. European settlers established sheep runs in the area by the 1850s. Heritage New Zealand classifies sites on the New Zealand Heritage List / Rārangī Kōrero in accordance with the Heritage New Zealand Pouhere Taonga Act 2014. Margaret Hamilton was an American entertainer and educator, she appeared in films for seven years before being offered the role that defined her public image. Wikipedia is a free online encyclopedia that offers a vast amount of knowledge on various subjects. It has several specialized projects, including Wikibooks for textbooks, Wikidata for a free knowledge base, and Wikinews for breaking news. Additionally, Wikipedia features Wikiquote for collected quotations, Wikisource for a library of texts, and Wikispecies for information on species. The English version of Wikipedia is available, but many other Wikipedias exist in various languages, with some having over 250,000 articles. The text also provides a list of other Wikipedias, including Arabic, Spanish, French, German, Italian, Dutch, Japanese, Polish, Portuguese, Russian, Swedish, and others. In addition to its encyclopedic content, Wikipedia also includes a calendar section that lists notable events for a specific year, which in this case is 1426. This calendar includes information on historical events, such as the Czech Hussites' defeat of the German defenders of Aussig, as well as important cultural and scientific milestones from that year. King Henry VI opens parliament at Leicester, electing Richard Vernon as speaker. Tensions escalate in France as English knights clash with French troops in Normandy. In Albania, a treaty ends the Second Scutari War between Venice and Serbia. A Mamluk sultan summons sons of Hasan Ibn Ajlan to complete payment for their father's position as Emir of Mecca. Kale Kye-Taung Nyo flees his kingdom in Burma, succeeded by Mohnyin Thado who receives an ally from Toungoo. The Parliament of Bats closes in England with laws granting writs and licenses to transport corn. Hussites decisively beat German crusaders in the Fourth Anti-Hussite Crusade in Aussig. A king is defeated and captured in Cyprus, ransomed after ten months. Barakat Ibn Hasan is confirmed as Emir of Mecca after completing payment for his father's position. Treaty signing in Venice leads to Milan relinquishing territories. In 1470s, the Orsini family constructs Castello Orsini-Odescalchi in Bracciano, Italy. Meanwhile, eunuchs gain control of China's palace guards and imperial workshops, infiltrate civil services, and oversee foreign missions. Notable births include Eleanor of Navarre, queen regnant of Navarre (1479), Christian of Oldenburg, King of Denmark, Norway, and Sweden (1481), Anne Neville, Countess of Warwick (1492), Maria of Cleves, French noble (1487), Johann IV Roth, Roman Catholic bishop (1506), John II, Duke of Bourbon (1488), Thomas Hoccleve, English poet (1368), Kale Kye-Taung Nyo, deposed King of Ava (1385), Hubert van Eyck, painter (1490), Elizabeth of Lancaster, Duchess of Exeter, English Plantagenet noblewoman (1363), Pippo Spano, Hungarian military leader (1369), Thomas Beaufort, Duke of Exeter, English nobleman and military leader (1377), Tezozomoc, Tepanec ruler of Azcapotzalco and military leader. The 14th century was a transformative period marked by significant events across various regions. It began on January 1, 1301, and ended on December 31, 1400. This era witnessed substantial loss of life due to political conflicts and natural disasters, estimated to be over 45 million in Europe and the Mongol Empire alone. In West Africa, economic growth and prosperity flourished. The Black Death had a devastating impact on Europe, claiming 25 million lives and significantly altering the population dynamics. The Hundred Years' War between England and France was a defining feature of this period, while the Italian Renaissance and the Ottoman Empire began to take shape. Tamerlane's conquests established the Timurid Empire, one of history's largest empires, resulting in an estimated 17 million deaths from his military campaigns. The Arab world saw contributions from Ibn Khaldun and Ibn Battuta, while India experienced the separation of the Bengal Sultanate. The Mongol Empire faced significant setbacks, with its court being driven out of China and the Ilkhanate collapsing. In Africa, the Mali Empire reached its peak under Mansa Musa I, who was considered one of the wealthiest individuals in medieval times. Meanwhile, the Mexica founded Tenochtitlan in the Americas, while Cahokia's abandonment marked a decline in North American settlements. The Little Ice Age began around 1300 and lasted until the 19th century, causing widespread cooling that led to famines and crop yield reductions in Europe and North America. 1309: King Jayanegara succeeds Kertarajasa Jayawardhana as ruler of Majapahit. 1314: Templars are executed. 1315-1317: Great Famine kills millions in Europe. 1320: Wladyslaw I the Elbow-high is crowned King of Poland, leading to its unification. 1323: Cannibalism is abolished in Tutuila (present-day American Samoa). 1328: Tribhuvana Wijayatunggadewi succeeds Jayanegara as ruler of Majapahit. 1328-1333: Wang Dayuan travels through Southeast Asia, reaching Dhofar and Aden. 1331-1333: Genkō War deposes the Kamakura Shogunate in Japan. 1335: Death of Ilkhan Abu Said causes Mongol rule to disintegrate in Persia. 1336: Vijayanagara Empire is founded in South India by Harihara I, ending the Kenmu Restoration in Japan. 1343-1345: Pagan Estonians attempt to rid themselves of non-indigenous Christianity on Saint George's Night Uprising. 1347-1351: Black Death kills a third of Europe's population. 1348: 6.9-magnitude Friuli earthquake is felt across Europe, linked to the Black Death and Great Famine. 1350: Ramathibodi I establishes Ayutthaya Kingdom, while Hayam Wuruk succeeds as ruler of Majapahit, beginning its 'Golden Age'. 1453: Mongols begin conquering Eastern Europe. 1460s: A group of English wool merchants is granted a royal charter by King Edward IV to establish the first joint-stock company in England. Note: The given text was reworded to maintain its original message Events in 1397 included the establishment of the Kalmar Union, uniting Norway, Sweden, and Denmark into one kingdom; Chimalpopoca began his reign as the third tlatoani of Tenochtitlan, while Zhu Di launched a campaign to unseat his nephew, the Jianwen Emperor. The Iwan vault in Isfahan's Jame Mosque was constructed during this time period. Additionally, an account of Buddha's life gained popularity among Christians and led to the veneration of Barlaam and Josaphat as saints. The article discusses various historical topics, including the Amoghapaṇḍa-beḍ of Padang Candi, the Ming Dynasty in China, Sanskrit literature, Great Zimbabwe, and the 14th century. The text references multiple sources, such as academic books and journals, to support its claims. Customized Legal Forms for Business Growth Download and print professionally prepared legal documents in minutes. Our system allows you to create an unlimited number of real estate forms from simple agreements to lease terminations, while staying up-to-date on the latest versions. Save time and money with our do-it-yourself templates that take care of all your business needs.