We believe in the importance of lifelong learning and community engagement among older adults. This is why we designed our one-on-one computer training program. It is open to everyone, including those with different abilities. You don't need any prior knowledge or experience. Our training covers various topics such as Mac/Apple and Windows operating systems, Microsoft Office, social media, websites, internet basics, Viber, WhatsUp, Facebook, Skype, FaceTime, YouTube, and online safety. We also work with NDIS clients and use online training to build their skills. Our motivation for offering this program is simple. Many people learn to use computers out of necessity, such as when they can't talk to their loved ones who live abroad due to high phone bills. Our goal is to empower everyone, regardless of age or ability, to stay connected with the world online. We believe that computer literacy opens up new opportunities for learning and communication. However, we understand that some people may feel anxious about technology. Don't worry, our coaches are here to help you overcome your fears and build your confidence. Our sessions are designed to be comfortable and one-on-one, which allows us to tailor the training to each individual's needs. We also provide online training for those who cannot attend in-person sessions. By working with a qualified computer coach, you can learn at your own pace and save time and frustration. Our coaches are specialised in technology and people, and we have programs available for all levels. Don't hesitate to contact us today if you want to get involved or learn more about our services. You can reach us by phone or email.
