Mistakes

- Technological civilization has reached its
- present "advanced" state by the trial-and-error behavior of
- those who lived before us. Many of the most useful
- discoveries and inventions were the result of mistakes when
- people were looking for something else. The New World was
- found by Columbus, who was really looking for India. The
- discovery of penicillin was speeded by somebody who left a
- loaf of bread out to get moldy. Think how far behind
- ourselves we'd be now if mistakes were impossible for us to
- make.
- Our knowledge is also increased by our mistakes, if
- only because once a mistake has been made, a way of
- correcting it must be found. If the mistake had not been
- made by us in the first place, we might have had no reason
